Washington, June 2.—While the government awaited today the effect of the new plan to combat the warring military factions in Mexico, the American Red Cross, aided by the state and war departments, carried out relief work in the border zone, leaving hungry non-combatants in the interior to starve and the border to suffer from famine threatened republic.

Orders were telegraphed to colonial officers along the border to cooperate in a similar manner with the Red Cross and similar instructions were given the frontier military posts. Brigadier General Devol, general manager of the United States Postal Service, ordered the postal service preparatory to leaving for Texas tomorrow, and the next day or later to supervise the movement of supplies to Mexico.

The United States Southern Railway Association promised the American Red Cross that the railroads grant either free transportation or reduced rates for the Red Cross.

Meanwhile, Miss Mabel T. Boardman, chairman of the relief committee, is undertaking arrangements to organize several committees in municipalities to collect and forward supplies purchased or contributed. Tomorrow all the plans will be placed before the Red Cross executive committee, which includes among its members Secretary Lane, Counsellor Lansing of the state department; Surgeon General Gorkas of the army; Surgeon General Braisted of the navy, and Solicitor General Davis.

Secretary Bryan announced during the day that the Brazilian ministerial train to carry 150 Americans for vacation in the United States. Mr. Bryan said the foreigners who wanted to leave shortly because of the food shortage would be taken on this train. He called that the standing advice of the state department to Americans who wished to leave the country was to go by train. He added:

"We have helped all those Americans who wanted to come out at the time of the food shortage."

own expense. The only ones who have not helped have been those who have come out once and have gone back in the face of the department's advice."

Messages from Consul Silliman Vera Cruz and Consular Agent Cuthbert at Chihuahua, told of the receipt of copies of President Wilson's statement announcing that unless military factions themselves succeeded in composing their differences and restoring constitutional government,

Gen. Otis Charge by Mexican

Los Angeles, June 3.—N. S. Zog, self-styled Mexican revolutionary general, on trial for issuing worthless check, testified on t witness stand in the superior court today that he had been engaged by General Harrison Gray Otis, owner of the Los Angeles Times, and General B. I. Van former Boer leader, to organize a revolt in Lower California. General Otis' son-in-law, Harry Chandler, recently was indicted on charge of having conspired to violate American neutrality by supporting such a scheme.

Otis in Denial.
Los Angeles, June 3.—General Harrison Gray Otis declared in interview he had never heard Zogg. General Otis is at Tehuacan, near Bakersfield and "I never authorized him or any one else to organize an expedition to Lower California," he added. "The man is not telling the truth."

Harry Chandler also said he had never heard of Zogg.

"The story I think is a fabrication for the purpose of excusing his offense of passing valueless checks," he said.

Zogg was convicted.

U. S. AWAITING EFFECTS OF WARNING TO MEXICAN LEADERS

The United States would be obliged to find other means of accomplishing this end. It is supposed Consul Silliman handed a copy to General Carranza today, but Carranza may not be able to reach Villa immediately. A copy for Roque Gonzalez Garza, provisional president of the Villa-Zapata government in Mexico City, was sent to the Brazilian minister for delivery.

Copies to All Consuls.
It was learned today that copies of the statement had been sent to all American consular representatives in order that its support might be generally known to the Mexican people. There has been no indication of how long President Wilson expects to wait for a coalition of the contending elements before proceeding to the execution of the new policy by which he expects to restore peace and save Mexico's civilian population from further distress.

The statement by the Villa agency here last night indicating that Villa might be expected to co-operate in an agreement was followed today by one from the Carranza representative asserting that Carranza now controlled most of Mexico, would occupy the capital within a week and there set up a provisional civil administration "until he can wipe out the remnants of the reactionaries and convene the people to elections for officers of a constitutional government." This was accepted in official circles as meaning that Carranza would make a supreme effort to place himself in a position to demand recognition before the next session of the United States is determined upon.

State department reports confirmed claims of a victory for Villa over Obregon at Silao, but few details were given. Upon the ultimate outcome of this battle, which has been in progress intermittently for weeks, depends supremacy in central Mexico and possibly the success of a final effort to bring the contending factions together to establish a new government.

Dr. Urrutia Criticizes Note.
San Antonio, Tex., June 3.—Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, formerly minister of the interior in the cabinet of President Huertismo, today characterized President Wilson's newest Mexican note as "a new transgression on the affairs of Mexico," "an error" and "certain to arouse the ire of the Mexicans against whoever from today appears before the world as the one responsible for this condition—which is the American government." Dr. Urrutia further said that the note was "a tacit confession by Mr. Wilson of his self-appointment as ruler of our country."

"In the midst of our misfortunes," he said, "we rejoice that the American government has thrown aside its mask at a time which, though profoundly sad and shameful for us, yet is also a very solemn moment for the man who will try to bear on his shoulders the sacred task of saving our country."

Note Doesn't Reach Silliman.
Vera Cruz, June 3.—President Wilson's note concerning Mexico has not yet been received by John R. Silliman, the president's personal representative in Mexico. When it arrives it will be immediately handed to General Carranza, the constitutionalist leader.

No intimation of the contents of the note has reached Vera Cruz.

In an interview with the Associated Press before any note was expected, General Carranza expressed optimism over the prospect of overwhelming the forces of General Villa and restoring order. He added he was confident he could accomplish the ideals of the constitutionalists without foreign aid. "Our battles," said General Carranza, "are for freedom and no freedom ever was won with outside aid. Therefore we want only the moral support of the United States. We invite their friendship and will do all in our power to deserve it. President Wilson's attitude all along has indicated that he was the friend of down-trodden people and was giving protection to the oppressed. It is impossible to conceive of any unfriendly action by the United States."

Recently Mr. Silliman received orders to tell the Carranza government that the molestation of Americans or their property no longer would be tolerated and that the government here must state positively whether it was able to give protection to Americans. The Carranza government replied that it was doing everything possible to stop the molestation of Americans in the interior, which was being done by unruly bands outside of Vera Cruz. The Vera Cruz government also was asked to provide a train for 300 destitute Americans in Mexico City to come to Vera Cruz. The government promised to furnish the train but declared that the difficulty was to get the permission of Emiliano Zapata for the Americans to leave the interior.

Another Pleads Guilty
Attempt to Defraud

New York, June 3.—Harry R. Salomon, a member of the importing and exporting firm of Salomon Brothers & Co. and a lieutenant in the German army, today followed the example of three others indicted with him for conspiracy to defraud the United States through the filing of false manifests on contraband shipments of rubber. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $500.

"Neutrality," said Judge Hunt, in imposing the sentence, "carries with it not only the duty of being supremely passive, but means also that a country must be vigilantly active in preventing violations of its laws by those who aim to help the belligerents. The defendant, however, is a citizen of this country. It would be more difficult for him to explain his loyalty to his native country. The court was lenient in the case of the other three defendants. It cannot discriminate in the case of this defendant."

The other defendants were Franz Rosenberg of Hanover, Germany, Sigmond Karman of Budapest, Austria, and Albert Newman of Brooklyn, who were all fined several days ago. Albert Salomon, a fifth defendant, has demurred to the indictment.

Observed at Austin.
Austin, June 3.—The anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis was appropriately observed here today. The state departments were closed and an appropriate program was carried out this affair by the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Banks Close at Gatesville.
Gatesville, June 3.—The postoffice and banks celebrated Jefferson Davis' birthday by suspending business today.

General Business Conditions
Are Improved Say Agents

Washington, June 3.—General business and banking conditions throughout the country as observed by the federal reserve agents of the twelve regional banks are set forth in the monthly bulletin of the federal reserve board, issued today. Improvement was reported by most of the agents, while others noted that the demand from Europe for war supplies was keeping many industries busy.

Purely financial conditions were reported as excellent by the Kansas City agent. "The retail and wholesale trade is not quite up to normal," he said, "however, collections are slightly better than normal, except such slight bills as depend upon wages. Building operations are not as extensive as a year ago." "General business conditions in this district," reported the St. Louis agent, "especially in the larger cities and manufacturing centers, while still below normal, indicate a continued, though slow improvement. The manufacturing industries, except those affected by war orders show less improvement than the general jobbing interests."

A light demand for money was reported by the Dallas agent. "There is little evidence of the pressure that existed last fall," he said. "Wheat and oats will soon be coming into the market and the agricultural products are good. Higher prices of cotton and sales of cattle, horses and mules have brought large credits."

The Richmond agent reported "very little change in general conditions during March." "Hope for the future," he added, "has been increased in the presence of timely rains and the knowledge that the close of the planting season shows that there is material diversification. Atlanta reported conditions generally good."

"The outlook is brighter than at any time since the European war," said the agent. "Agricultural conditions appear exceedingly bright."

BRIEF BUT POINTED NOTE
SENT TO GERMAN GOVERNMENT

pressed in its note of May 13 and ask an adherence to it. The principle which is to be placed squarely before Germany in such a way as to elicit either an affirmative or negative answer was stated in the American government's last note as follows:

"The lives of non-combatants whether they be of neutral citizenship or citizens of one of the nations at war cannot lawfully or rightfully be placed in jeopardy by the capture or destruction of an unarmed merchantman," and the imperial government must "recognize also as all other nations do, the obligation to take the usual precautions of visit and search."

In view of the statement in the German note that reliable information was at hand to the effect that the Lusitania was armed, the American government intends to restate that it made full and searching investigation before the Lusitania sailed and that its good faith is pledged to the assertion that no guns were carried by the vessel. In many quarters it was believed Germany might find a way out of the dilemma by accepting the statement of the United States as superseding its own evidence, declaring that a mistake had been made.

Little importance is attached by officials to the affidavits which the German embassy has transmitted to the state department alleging there were guns aboard the Lusitania. Although neither the state department nor the embassy has made these affidavits public, Counselor Lansing said their description published today was substantially accurate. In one of these Gustave Stahle of 20 Leroy street, New York City, declares he went aboard the Lusitania to assist his friend, A. Leitch, a cabin steward, with a trunk and saw on the aft main deck and fore deck four guns of 12 and 15 caliber mounted on tripods. They were said to be covered with leather and Stahle alleges that he fastened the buckles to ascertain the calibre of the guns. Mrs. Joseph Weir, boarding house keeper in New York, is the signer of a second affidavit swearing she heard Leitch speak of four guns on the ship. Another signed by a man named Leitch, who is now in the hands of the British, declares that he saw Mrs. Weir and Leitch make remarks in that connection and a fourth by a man named Brucker says he saw cannon on the deck of the Lusitania while standing on the dock at New York.

All four affidavits have been referred to the department of justice which is investigating. To controvert the demand, the United States government has its own reports from Collector Malone and his inspectors.

SUMMARY OF WAR

Coincidental with the fall of Przemyśl, the recapture from the Russians of the great Galician fortress by the Teutonic allies—the new British minister of munitions, David Lloyd-George, has begun his campaign for a vastly greater supply of war material for the British, French and Belgian soldiers in the western war zone.

Lloyd-George admitted that the Russians had suffered a severe setback and attributed the German triumph to the superior equipment of the German soldiers, an overwhelming superiority of shot and shell and all things necessary for carrying on a successful campaign.

The retaking of Przemyśl, which is the result of a full month's desperate fighting over many miles of difficult country, is considered on all sides as one of the great achievements of the war. If full credence is to be placed in the official statements issued of the campaign in the Galician region from day to day, the casualty lists, including killed and wounded, must run into the hundreds of thousands.

Some of the biggest of the Austrian and German guns were utilized in reducing the fortress, which, some reports have it, large numbers of the Russian garrison were withdrawn. Lemberg to the east is likely to be the Austro-Germans' next objective.

In the spectacular war of the air is to be found in a daring early morning raid by French aeroplanes over the headquarters of the German crown prince. Twenty-nine of these aircraft, to Vera Cruz, the government promised to furnish the train but declared that the difficulty was to get the permission of Emiliano Zapata for the Americans to leave the interior.

noon and the enemy fled, leaving three sixteen-pound guns complete with ammunition and nearly 250 prisoners in our hands. "After harmlessly exploding several heavily charged mines discovered later in the river bed and on land, we continued our advance on June 1, found that the enemy had hastily evacuated his camps at Barhan and Ratta, leaving a number of tents standing. He was observed retreating in steamers and motor boats, which were speedily pursued by the naval flotilla.

"By evening we reached a point five miles north of Ezra's Tomb, some 25 miles north of Przemyśl. The Turkish steamer Bulbul was overtaken and sunk. We also captured two large lighters. One contained three field guns, ammunition, and about 300 prisoners. The pursuit was continued by moonlight. "Our casualties have been trifling, about twenty in all."

Italians Are Advancing.
Udine, Italy, June 3.—Austrian troops have repeatedly tried to dislodge Italian forces from Monte Nero ridge, across the Isonzo river, north of the Gulf of Trieste. According to advances, the Italians still hold the ridge.

The Italians' advance across the Isonzo has been accomplished in the face of unusual difficulties. Heavy rains made it impossible to ford the river, except for detachments of cavalry, whose horses swam. Engineers protected by artillery constructed pontoon bridges for the infantry.

When the troops had crossed the river greater difficulties were encountered. Rain had transformed mountain paths into swift streams. Water pouring down the mountain uprooted trees and obstructed progress. The progress was slow, but the invaders climbed the mountain, conveying heavy artillery, ammunition and supplies. They occupied Drenzana, Gosec, Kartreft and smaller villages below Monte Nero, and took the ridge. Regular communication with the base on the right bank of the Isonzo has been maintained.

Monte Nero dominates the Friuli valley, possession of which enables the Italians to menace Tolmino from the rear. This town, together with batteries recently constructed on Santa Maria and Santa Lucia hills, presents one of the most formidable obstacles to an Italian advance at that point.

Monte Nero also commands the valleys leading to the northeast. The Isonzo-Piezzo district, having on its north a pass which, strongly fortified, protects the road to Tarvis. The Italian occupation of this ridge is thus connected with the action which from the Raccolana and Dorna valleys threaten the Seebach valley leading to Predil.

Mistake in Torpedoing Vessel.
Penzance, England, June 3.—The captain of the Belgian trawler Delta, B, section of France or Belgium and many of the shells are said to have been effective. That the Germans were on the alert to protect Prince Frederick William is apparent by the fact that the aeroplanes were subjected to a heavy gunfire. All of them, however, returned safely to their base.

The president of the United States has prepared a note in answer to the German reply to the American demand, respecting the Lusitania and the German submarine warfare which is first to be submitted to the cabinet and then dispatched to Berlin probably before the end of the week. It is announced from Washington that a personal emissary of Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, is to proceed to the German capital and lay before the emperor and the high German officials the state of public opinion in the United States as the American ambassador learned it in his recent interview with President Wilson.

In accept for additional progress by the allied troops in the "Labyrinth," near Neuville-St. Vaast, Paris asserts there is nothing new to report on the western front. Berlin, however, declares the Germans have met with success against the British at Hooge, near Ypres, and that fighting of a fierce nature is going on north of Arras and the forest of St. Eloi.

Rome reports that the Austrians are withdrawing from the Piemonte valley, to the northwest of Trent.

sunk by a German submarine yesterday, states that after the crew had taken to the boats the commander of the submarine offered to take them aboard, explaining that he was unaware that their craft was Belgian. The submarine attacked the trawler by shell fire. It was not until the trawler had been hit several times and damaged that the captain abandoned efforts to escape and surrendered.

Rome Official Statement.
Rome, June 3.—An official statement today said: "Our vessels on their return today from their scouting cruiser reported that, twenty-four hours after the bombardment of Monfalcone, our aeroplanes had destroyed the enemy's air force. The attack was declared by the German war office that the Teutonic allies captured 12,175 men and sixty officers in the region of the town of St. Eloi."

Austrian Official Statement.
Vienna, June 3.—The following official communication was issued today:

"In the Russian war theatre the German troops last night occupied the last positions on the north front of Przemyśl and entered the city at 3:30 o'clock this morning from the north. "Our tenth corps entered the town from the west and the east and reached the center of the town soon after 6 o'clock."

"The importance of this success cannot yet be estimated. The attack on the allied troops in the sector north of Strij is progressing successfully."

"In the Italian war theatre the Italians have prosecuted an unsuccessful advance of our fortifications at several points on the Tirolian and Carinthian frontiers."

Capture of Silao.
Washington, June 3.—Details of the capture of Silao yesterday with large quantities of arms, ammunition and supplies by General Villa were given in a dispatch received today by the Villa agency from Miguel Diaz Lombardo, foreign minister at Chihuahua. News of the capture of Silao reached the Villa agency in a message from Lombardo dated yesterday. This was confirmed by state department advisers and later the agency received the following from Lombardo dated today:

"Confirming the messages of yesterday relative to the capture of Silao, Col. Perez Rul advises me today that General Villa sent a courier to General Obregon last night and advised that after four hours of hard fighting he had captured the town. The courier took Silao and that the enemy cavalry, seeing themselves defeated, took flight to the south and immediately he gave orders to General Obregon to pursue them without delay. The courier reached the center of the town soon after 6 o'clock."

"The young men, said the minister, had not refused to respond in sufficient numbers to the appeal made to their patriotic feelings by the minister. He continued: "We have been endeavoring to conduct a war with the ordinary untrained weapons of peace," he said, "against the most formidable antagonist that ever has attacked human freedom. You may as well send our men to face shrapnel and howitzers armed with picks and shovels as to go through the war with the industrial army organized, equipped and armed with the ordinary shifts and experiments of peace."

The meeting passed a resolution pledging to support in every possible way the efforts of the minister of munitions to increase the output of war materials.

LOYD GEORGE PLEADS
FOR MORE MUNITIONS

DECLARES GERMAN VICTORY IN GALICIA DUE TO SUPERIOR EQUIPMENT.

Addresses Employers in Engineering Trades and Unionists at Manchester.

Manchester, June 3.—Declaring that the German victory in Galicia was due to an overwhelming superiority in equipment and that if the allies in Galicia had been as well equipped the Germans would long ago have been driven from France and Belgium, David Lloyd-George, the new minister of munitions, made a stirring appeal tonight to employers and workmen to supply the British armies with the necessary munitions.

The speech was delivered before employers in the engineering trades and trade unionists. Lloyd-George received a remarkable ovation from Manchester, in striking contrast to his reception here on previous visits of a political nature, particularly when he appeared at the time of the Boer war as an opponent of that struggle.

"I come," he said, "as an emissary of state, to carry the most urgent message ever told a Manchester audience. Our country is fighting for its life, for the liberties of Europe, and upon what it does, upon what it is prepared to sacrifice, depends the issue. It is not upon the matters of money and men occupied in running workshops than upon any part of the community whether Great Britain will emerge from the colossal struggle beater, humiliated, stripped of power, honor and influence and mere bond slave of cruel military tyranny, or whether it will come out triumphant, free and more powerful than ever for good in the affairs of men."

Russia Has Suffered.
"I come here to tell you the truth. Unless you know it, you cannot be expected to make sacrifices. Our Russian allies have suffered a severe setback. The Germans have achieved a great success, not because of the superior valor of their soldiers or strategy of their generals. The German triumph is due entirely to superior equipment."

"One hundred thousand shells were concentrated in a single hour on the heads of the gallant Russians. Had we been in a position to apply the same process to the Germans on our front, the German war machine would have been turned out of France and driven half way across the devastated plain of Flanders. They would have been well out of the country, they had tortured and above all they had tortured. More than that, we should have actually penetrated into Germany."

"For the moment we have more than enough men for the job. More men will come to the call, but we want the workshops to equip them with weapons. The state now needs the help of all and I am perfectly certain that the French engineers have already done."

The minister said he was not there "to brandish his powers under the de-fense of the realm act." "Compulsory war measures for the majority, but there were a few who just lagged behind."

The government, which alone knows the meaning of the word "conscription," said Mr. Lloyd-George, "generals if necessary. But until they reach the sea, they ought to be kept at bay by the men of the land."

On Conscription.
Speaking of conscription, he said: "Conscription means the raising of our army by compulsory methods of armies to fight Great Britain's battles abroad. If the necessity arose I am certain that no man would object."

"We won our liberties in this land on more than one occasion by compulsory service. The great republic to the west won its independence and saved its existence by compulsory service. "It has been the greatest weapon in the hands of the democracy many times for the winning and preservation of freedom. All the same it would be a great mistake to resort to it unless it was absolutely necessary."

The young men, said the minister, had not refused to respond in sufficient numbers to the appeal made to their patriotic feelings by the minister. He continued: "We have been endeavoring to conduct a war with the ordinary untrained weapons of peace," he said, "against the most formidable antagonist that ever has attacked human freedom. You may as well send our men to face shrapnel and howitzers armed with picks and shovels as to go through the war with the industrial army organized, equipped and armed with the ordinary shifts and experiments of peace."

The meeting passed a resolution pledging to support in every possible way the efforts of the minister of munitions to increase the output of war materials.

OUT OF THE EARTH
COMES THIS FORCE

One of Marvels of America is Vitalitas Mine Being Worked in Texas.

The mining and handling of Vitalitas is becoming an important industry at one isolated spot in the coast country of Texas, an industry that will prove of value to the entire world. Nowhere else on or within the earth has a similar substance been located. Crude Vitalitas, after being mined, is shipped to laboratories at Houston, Tex., where, by an extraction process, all the chemical properties and forces are reduced to a condensed liquid form.

Vitalitas is daily bringing health and happiness to thousands of sufferers throughout the South. It is one of Nature's great gifts to mankind, and is proving a beacon light to sick and suffering everywhere. Many forms of disease that defy ordinary medical treatment are swept away by it. Its tonic, corrective and system-cleansing effects are marvelous. There are no known mineral waters that equal it in the treatment of indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh, debility, nervous disorders, generally, of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood. The dose is a teaspoonful in a half glass of hot or cold water four times daily.

German Transport Sunk; Believed to Be the "General"

London, June 3.—The large German transport officially reported sunk by a British submarine in Panderma Bay is believed to have been either the steamer General of 4900 tons, formerly of the German East Africa company, or the Corcodova, of 4900 tons, which was owned by the Hamburg-American steamship line.

The General fled to Constantinople at the same time as did the German cruiser Goeben and Breslau. The Corcodova was used by the Hamburg-American line to inaugurate a passenger service between the United States and Turkey last year. She was in the Black Sea when the war started and took refuge in the Bosphorus later being transferred to the Turkish flag.

Mexican Boy Kills
Young Woman and Commits Suicide

Oklahoma City, June 3.—Miss Alta Norman, 31 years old, a former employee of the public library, was found dead here this afternoon at 2:30 in her parents' apartments at 1011 North Central avenue. Two doors away was the body of a Mexican boy who had been killed and then committed suicide. The weapon used was a .22-caliber revolver which the youth emptied once and reloaded. Trails of blood across the room showed that the girl tried to escape and also tried to use the telephone to call help. The murder is thought to have been committed last night.

The Mexican boy had been a chore boy around the apartment and slept in the room where his body was found, for the last day or two, in the absence of his mother. He was a stolen lad, under suspicion of the neighborhood and against whom Miss Norman had been repeatedly warned.

BOTH HOUSES BRITISH PARLIAMENT MEETS

NEW MEMBERS COALITION CABINET UNABLE TO TAKE SEATS.

Bill Rushed Through—Will Remedy This, However, as War Measure.

London, June 3.—Both houses of parliament met today for the first time since the formation of the new coalition ministry. The new members of the cabinet, however, were unable to take their places on the ministerial benches in the house of commons, owing to the law which made them ineligible to sit until they were re-elected by their various constituencies.

This situation, however, was speedily remedied for the house of commons passed in all its stages a bill removing this disability for the period of the war. The house of lords passed the first reading of the same bill and will take up its further stages tomorrow.

There were some mutterings in the lower house against the bill being rushed through at one sitting, thus preventing a general discussion of Premier Asquith's decision calling up on the opposition to assist him in carrying on the war. This was silenced by Sir John M. Simon, the new secretary of state for home affairs, who led the house in the absence of the premier, promising to grant a day for the discussion of political changes.

Laurence Grimmett, an Irish Nationalist who follows the leadership of none of the parliamentary parties but is the leader and only member of his own party, was not to be denied, however, and succeeded in securing a vote of censure against the house who formerly were "calling each other liars and political assassins" were now aspiring to give each other jobs and were afraid to face the electorate. Mr. Grimmett was attacking Premier Asquith's political career and his speaker ordered him to resume his seat.

After the passage of the suspensory bill, the house of commons passed the first reading of a bill establishing a ministry of munitions of which David Lloyd-George will have charge. While it is expected that the new government will have the support of the whole of the house of commons and the house of lords, the extension of a few irreconcilables such as Mr. Grimmett, it is to be an "unofficial opposition" in both houses. The leadership of that in the lower house has been assumed by the Right Hon. Henry Chaplin, an Irish Nationalist, a little group of radicals who will accept nothing but a liberal government, as a token of their disapproval of the coalition, today crossed the floor to seats from which they face the ministry and will be in a better position to cross-examine them.

The Nationalists are said to be prepared to raise a row if, as has been reported, the government proposes to appoint the Right Hon. James H. Campbell, an Irish member for Dublin University, as lord chancellor for Ireland.

Nestled Eggs.

Separate whites from the yolks of eggs, beat the whites to a stiff froth and lay yolks aside. Have ready slices of toast made from slices of bread cut rather thick. Put a layer of minced ham or tongue on toast; then pile a portion of the stiffly beaten white of egg on this. Make a depression in the center of it and drop the yolk into this. Season with salt and pepper and bake just until the eggs are set. Very small fragments of ham or tongue will serve for this dish.

Robin's Nest Salad.—On each individual salad dish place one-half of a large golden peach, fresh or preserved, cut side up. In the hollow of each peach put six blanched hazelnuts and six seedless grapes well washed, add a good sprinkle of powdered sugar and have ready one pint of whipped cream to which has been added the white of an egg beaten to a stiff froth. Mix well into the cream the white of the egg, which keeps the cream in place. Then put two tablespoonfuls of the cream over the fruit and serve.

How to Plank Fish.—To insure appetizing variety in serving fish broiling and planking should not be overlooked. The delicious "planked shad," which can be enjoyed at its best only during the short season of fresh spring shad, may have very desirable substitutes throughout the year with a little care in selection and preparation, as many other fish may be "planked" as well as shad. Planked fish may also be known as baked fish, as it is cooked in the oven, although a broiling process similar to planking is often resorted to for small fish.

For the oven broiling process the cooking is accomplished in the oven of a gas stove. Instead of the regular broiler a greased tin is used, and the fish are placed skin side down on the tin and slipped under the flame of the broiling oven. For the first rapid cooking, until the fish are nicely browned, the burners are turned on full; then for the final simmering, or the slow broiling that is to make the fish tasty and thoroughly cooked, the burners are turned low, allowing the fish to cook for about half an hour, with browned skin and tender flakiness.

MISS ENRIQUE SMITH FOR MISS STELLA LACY

In quite the cozy way, and yet with very pretty appointments, Miss Enrique Smith was luncheon hostess in honor of Miss Stella Lacy as the late June bride. While the buffet luncheon was the forte of the occasion, the guests lingered until a parlor musical was enjoyed, both voice and piano. In this Miss Cornwall, the home guest, sang; also, Miss Lacy, while Miss Gertrude Bush gave piano numbers. In selecting her flower, Miss Smith used only the pink in setting of the foliage. However, the color relief was quite acceptably given in the dainty tones of blue, yellow and pink. Of the bride's maids who adorned the chair cards. Sweet peas, in plenty, gladiolus and the cyclamen were the preferred flowers, on table, buffet, piano and march. To enjoy this courtesy to Miss Lacy were the Mesdames Cornwall, Nancy Lacy, Virginia Rose, Anne Risher, Norma Bonner, Mayde Cauffield, Monette Colgin, Clarabel Knight, Mabel Chambers, Ida Orand, Elizabeth Patton, Louise Baker, Marian Duncan, Agnes Blanding of Corsicana, Lurline Mosely, Lucile Hill, Frances Luedde and Gertrude Bush.

A PARTING PLEASURE FOR MRS. T. F. BRYAN

Mrs. T. F. Bryan is now severing her connection of more than twenty years with the public school. Her intention has been final for some time, but it is only with the closing of the school year that such is becoming more generally known. On Wednesday, the last when the teachers should be together with their departing friend, a tribute was paid Mrs. Bryan. This came as a perfect surprise, and one which found the recipients completely overcome. The teachers gathered, previously provided with a refreshment feature. Principal Holcomb, Miss Azalea Pidcock and Miss Theresa Hutchins, each made remarks along the line of association with Mrs. Bryan as teacher, as friend, as hostess in her home. But, the greatest was the last, the presentation with Mrs. J. B. Powell spokesman of a set of silver spoons the reminder in the home to come of former happy association. As special guests, there were Mrs. Holcomb, Mr. Bryan and J. B. Powell. Numerous are the special incidents now happening in the several schools. But no one has touched a more tender chord than did this farewell to Mrs. Bryan as a teacher.

HIGH SCHOOL HONORS GIVE RECOGNITION

Following the custom of former years Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Darden gave complimentary dinner to the honor students of the high school. As founder of the Darden Literary Society, and now as acting president of the school board, it is the pleasure of Mr. Darden and the good wife each recurring year to have the honor students within their home. Miss Annie Forsgard of the faculty, was included in the courtesy of Wednesday evening. It goes without saying that the much beloved daisy of the high school was utilized by Mrs. Darden in her dinner appointments, both in decoration and in service. It had just become known that the winner of the Darden Literary prize for the current year was Miss Amelia Goodwin. Those who formed this dinner party were presi-

GO AFTER ENGLAND NEXT.

President Wilson is fully justified in taking serious exceptions to the German reply to his note on the sinking of the Lusitania and previous attacks upon American ships in that the German government took no cognizance of this country's complaint of the violations of international law, instanced in the failure of the submarine crew to seize and search the Lusitania and give passengers and crew an opportunity to escape before destroying the ship and its cargo. We hope the president will succeed in his efforts to bring Germany to a proper respect of international law as regards the rights of neutrals and belligerents as well, though the first reply of the Berlin foreign office did not afford much hope for such a satisfactory settlement of the controversy between that office and Washington.

But after the president has brought Germany around to a proper respect for the rights of all neutrals as well as those of the United States, we hope he will turn his attention to England and see that that country also keeps within the bounds of international law in its dealings with neutrals and belligerents. We hear more of German outrages during the war than we do of those committed by the allies, and it is true that Germany has been the greater offender in her submarine policy, but England dominates most of the cables and censors the dispatches from more quarters than London, and we do not get the full facts from the field of war.

In the seizure and unreasonable detention of American ships England has violated international law and seriously interfered with the movement of our commerce, and while the element of the loss of life has not figured in her depredations, her course has been such as to constitute an insult to this government and we hope that England will also be "held to a strict accountability" for her disregard of the rights of neutrals.

Some have suggested that if the United States could bring both Germany and England to a strict compliance with the rules of international law, to do which it would be necessary for each of these contending countries to make considerable concessions from the courses they have been pursuing in the past, it would pave the way for the United States to be the mediator in the settlement of the whole issue of the war. We are not prepared to take so roseate a view of the situation at present, but it is the duty of the United States to insist that all of the nations at war shall respect our rights and those of all neutrals, and if that will pave the way for terminating the conflict, then it will be all the better.

General Felix H. Robertson of this county ran a close race for commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans at Richmond Wednesday. Had the people east of the Mississippi known him as well as we know him here they would have chosen him, except for the consideration that General Robertson is so well preserved that he promises to be strong and vigorous for many years yet and they wanted to give the honor to some of the old men who will not be here to share it later on. General Robertson will have another turn.

Americans will be glad to have their country rid of Dr. Dernburg and we have not enthused over Foreign Secretary Jagow at Berlin, but there is no higher-toned and more affable diplomat and gentleman at Washington than Count Bernstorff, it appears, and we only wish that he were conducting the German negotiations with President Wilson. We somehow feel that if men of his type had been directing the naval policy of his government the Lusitania incident would have not occurred.

Germany formally admits the torpedoing of the American ship Gulfight was a mistake. But the distressing phase of the situation is that the Kaiser's government does not seem to be making any effort to prevent such mistakes.

WILSON'S PLANS FOR MEXICO.

Now that President Wilson has put the salvation of Mexico squarely up to the leaders of the various factions that have prevented the composition of the troubles that have sorely torn that country for the past two years, the world will have an opportunity to gauge these men at their real worth and ascertain if they are spurred on by patriotic or purely selfish motives. The responsibility belongs to the leaders and try as they may, they cannot shirk it.

The masses of the people of Mexico are densely ignorant. They are not fitted for self-government. An absolute democracy for that country is unthinkable at present. Among these people the United States is regarded as an enemy and the chances are that they will resent the suggestion of intervention, even if the purpose of that intervention be, as the president suggests in his note, "to help Mexico save herself and her people." It is barely possible that the activities of the United States in supplying the hungry millions of Mexico with bread may overcome this ignorance and prejudice—the latter trait having been injected, in part, we are confident, by the scheming military and political leaders who know that the intervention of the United States will mean the end of their pillaging—but the comments made on the president's note by representatives of the various factions indicate that if these representatives still have any influence over the people the citizens of Mexico generally will be encouraged to discredit the efforts of President Wilson to help Mexico help herself.

But Carranza, Villa, Zapata, and the other leaders, all of whom are men of some intelligence and capable of understanding the unselfish and wholly humanitarian attitude of President Wilson, know that this country does not desire to promote any territorial or other character of aggression beyond the Rio Grande, and if they are patriots as they claim they are, they will take early steps looking toward the composition of their differences and the establishment of a government at Mexico City which foreign nations can recognize and which the people of Mexico can accept and trust. It looks as if all of the factional leaders are beginning to spar for political advantage, each hoping to put the other on the defensive by placing, if possible, the blame for failure to bring about stability and peace upon the other's shoulders.

The president will find it exceedingly difficult, we fear, unless the main rival factions have already exhausted their resources, to bring the leaders to a point where they will be willing to clear the way for the character of compromise or neutral government which he has in mind as a solution for the problem presented. The idea is a good one, but from the character of the Mexican leaders and of the people in general we doubt if the plan can be carried out without armed intervention or some other drastic measure. A complete embargo upon arms into Mexico might bring the factions together by making it impossible for them to continue their warfare, but we doubt it.

But the murder of Americans and other foreigners and the starvation of the natives would appear to justify armed intervention, not for the sake of annexing Mexico or any part of it to the United States, but merely that peace and order might be restored and that the people of that country might be provided with the blessings of a constitutional government and the privilege to ply their trades in peace. It is true, as the president points out, that "Mexico is starving and without a government." The aim of the United States is to make possible the establishment of a government. With that accomplished the people will be able to prevent starvation by the work of their own hands.

The president has undertaken a big task. All patriotic Americans will hope that he can carry it through in the name of humanity. And if it leads to intervention, which it may do ultimately, the country will sustain him there, but intervention will come only as a last resort, and then not for the sake of anything this country might gain, but for the sake of Mexico and the Mexicans.

Unless a young woman has a husband or a fiancé already engaged in the Philippines she cannot take the civil service examinations for teacher in the islands, the presumption being that she must have a protector in that country. This demand is waived in the case of the young woman who wants to teach cooking, by which we are led to believe that the civil service authorities are assured if the young woman can cook she will not remain long without some man who is willing to afford protection.

W. O. Anderson, commission merchant of Topeka, Kans., is managing to watch the ball games in his home town and attend to his business at the same time. He has a box in the grand stand just opposite third base and has a specially constructed telephone in his box whereby anyone wanting him while he is absent from his place of business can be given telephone connection through his office. We are wondering if the ultimate consumer has to pay for this commission man's luxury.

A professor in elocution says the modern student of expression has a great deal on our friend, Demosthenes, in that instead of having to go down to the seashore and fill his mouth with pebbles in order to, learn to enunciate correctly, he can try pronouncing six times in rapid succession some of those names from the Galician battlefields. Suzlzmehrgl, for instance, is suggested for a trial.

That Ohio officer who tried to kidnap a Waco resident has doubtless gotten some additional information on the power of a district judge in this state.

A WOODEN LOVING CUP.

A young woman of Waco enjoys the rare distinction of possessing a wooden loving cup.

And it is not a basket ball or tennis trophy. It is not the reward of successful competition in any field of endeavor.

It is something far better than that. It is a token of the love and esteem of a big army of boys whom many persons of the state believe incapable of so exalted a passion as love. It does not represent the joint cash contributions of the boys, but rather the labor of their own hands, for they fashioned the cup in their own workshop. It is about the same size as the average silver loving cup that we see displayed as prizes in the various popular athletic contests here and elsewhere.

But it is made of wood rather than silver, being carved out of a big block of pecan timber. It is an excellent piece of workmanship, showing as fine skill in woodwork as the jeweler's product does in silversmithing. It has no fancy designs upon it, but its possessor is prouder of it than of any silver or gold cup that might have been presented her, for there is in this cup the following personal message: "To Miss From the Boys of the State Juvenile Training School. We love you many cups full."

And what is the occasion of their loving the young woman so? She has always been their friend. Before many of the boys ever went to the Gatesville institution they had the privilege of this young woman's counsel and friendship and since they have gone to Gatesville she has visited the school and carried them messages of cheer and good will.

If you knew the average boy sent to the Gatesville school and the environment from which he went there you would not be surprised that a bunch of delinquents would entertain so deep an affection for one who has manifested a friendship for them and an abiding interest in them, even after they have gone astray.

And boys who are capable of this character of love are not entirely bad. We know that there is much in heredity and that many of the boys at Gatesville have "bad blood in their veins." But there is some hope for a bunch of boys who desire to reward the love of a pure young woman and who would choose such a tasteful and delicate manner of showing that love. The hearts of many lads we have known in the ranks of those from whom the Gatesville school has been filled are famishing for love, and we doubt not but that the bestowal of more affection upon them in the homes from which they originally came would have saved many of them to their homes and to society.

It has never been our good fortune to possess a loving cup. But we had rather have a wooden cup, representing the unfeigned love of a bunch of friendless boys, knowing that the simple inscription embodied the true sentiments of their hungry hearts, than all the gold and silver trophies from all the sporting courses in the world.

THE MISTAKE AND THE REMEDY.

Of course the inevitable error has been found in the educational appropriation bill, observes the Dallas News. Doubtless there are others which will be found when the governor comes to peruse the measure. The one already discovered was unearthed by a keen-eyed reporter during a hasty scanning of the bill. The legislature appropriated $100,000 for the erection of an auditorium for the Agricultural and Mechanical College. The stenographer, in his haste, typewrote it $1,000,000 and so it reads in the enrolled bill, which is the copy that goes to the governor as the certification of the legislature's action.

The question is, what to do about it? The governor may be disposed to allow $100,000 for the building of an auditorium at the college, but he can hardly be expected to consent to the setting aside of $1,000,000 of the state's funds for that purpose. Hence, can the governor run his pen through the final naught, eliminate one comma and move the other a notch backward, or must he cancel the whole item by disavowing it? The question is said to have occasioned much perturbation and anxiety at Austin, and we may easily imagine that it has churned the atmosphere between Bryan and College Station. It seems to us that the governor can properly take the course first suggested. Every member of the conference committee, which put this bill in its final form, and, indeed, every member of both the house and senate, will testify that what the legislature intended and what it actually did was to appropriate $100,000 for this purpose. No one can be found to question or even express a doubt on that point. Furthermore, there are probably in existence certain memoranda or scraps of paper which testify to the same end. To act on the contrary assumption or to pretend a doubt would be to set up a fiction that would not be believed even by the man who set it up. It would be an act of intellectual dishonesty. If the governor wishes to veto this item, that is his prerogative. But, in that case, let him so on ground of the fact and not on ground of fiction.

The queens of England, Prussia, Spain, Italy and Denmark are taller than their husbands and so is the czarina taller than the czar. Eugenists should set about immediately to collect data on the height of the various crown princes, grand duchesses and the like.

A check for $65,000,000, said to be the largest ever drawn in this country, changed hands in New York Wednesday. By which we conclude that money is to be had if you have the proper stuff to get it with.

Roumania will not remain out of the big European conflict much longer, according to all accounts. That government has just placed a rush order in New York for 500,000 pairs of army shoes.

A Galley o' Fun!

FUN WITH THE OLD MAN.

He was a meek-looking gentleman from the country, and as he took his seat at the dining room table the drummers looked at him over their soup spoons. They noted his weather-beaten face, his wet hair carefully parted and brushed around over his ears, and his air of diffidence when he nervously fingered his fork; and when the waiter girl stood demurely at his side and winked at the boot-and-shoe man they were all attention.

"Soup?" she asked.
The old man seemed a bit surprised at the brevity of the bill-of-fare and fidgeted about as though waiting for her to say something more.

"Would you like some soup?" said the girl, glancing at the coffee-and-tea man.

"I ain't particular about soup as I know of," answered the old man.

"Boil' mut'n' capersauce roas' beef 's' lamb 's' veal fricassee chick'n cole ham-tongue chick'n-salad fritters boil' 'd' bed 'platus,' said the girl with lightning-like rapidity.

The old man looked kind of helpless, and the boys felt a little sorry for him as he kept his eyes fastened on the fork, which he shoved from side to side with his fingers.

"I guess I'll take—I guess you'll have to say that again," he said, looking up, and the girl rattled the whole thing off in exactly the same time as before.

The old man looked round the table and caught sight of a drummer winking at the girl; then he jerked his head around, and looking her straight in the face, he said:
"You may gimme s'm cornbeef 'n' cabbage roas' beef veal 'n' mut'n' cole chick'n 'n' turkey 'n' tongue 'n' s'm ham 'n' eggs 'n' codfish-cakes 'n' sausage 'n' biscuits 'n' a piece o' pumpkin pie 'n' a cup o' coffee, sis; 'n' now see ef yer kin make yer little legs fly as fast as yer tongue, fer I want'er git home, there's a shower comin' up."

The girl hesitated, turned red, and then made a break for the kitchen, while the drummers laughed, and the old man gazed out of the window at the gathering clouds.

REMARKABLE.

Miriam.—Now you are out here, at Lonesomehurst, you must fairly revel in fresh vegetables, dear!
Millicent (rapturously).—We do. Would you believe it? (Impressively.) We can buy them almost as cheaply here as we could in the hot city!

A NEIGHBOR'S GARDEN.

It seems the very air is sweet
With fragrance that would thrill the bees
Until they'd dream, in rapture meet
The dreams of lost Herperides.
The flowers bless the cooling spray
And all their petals then uncloze
To catch the shower's richochet,
When Molly wields the garden hose.

The twilight deepens, settles down
The stillness of a summer's eve
Has claimed the busy, bustling town
That soon to blissful dreams 't will leave;

But o'er the grassy, glistening lawn
Each drop of water, jeweled, glows
And all the thirst of day is gone
When Molly wields the garden hose.

Her locks they rippling fall in waves
Beneath her fillet's close confines,
The grass her gown's rich hemming
Laves

With only rapturous designs;
Each passer-by but seems to see
In this rare sight a balm for woes;
The world is brighter, all agree,
When Molly wields the garden hose.

PROFIT BY IT.

Mrs. Suburban.—Oh, Henry! After passing through the long winter, the ice, the sleet and the snow, and then to see this glorious spring sunlight, these green fields, and the leafy trees! Why, one feels that it actually pays!

GOING BY AUTHORITY.

Squire Henney (astonished).—Rainy?

Jim Jackson.—Wal, dat's wot 'e almanac says an' dat's good 'nuff foh me!

Claim Consolidation on Phones at Temple Will Be a Big Saving

Temple, Tex., June 3.—The city council held a special meeting today with a committee from the Retail Merchants' association and J. B. Earle of Waco, president of the Texas Telephone company, and J. E. Farnsworth of Dallas, vice president of the Southwestern company, and considered the proposed merger of the two telephone exchanges being operated in this city.

Claim was made by the committee from the merchants' association that the merger would result in an annual saving of $10,000 per annum to Temple subscribers. These figures were questioned by several of the aldermen and the matter was temporarily disposed of by referring same to the public improvement committee to make a thorough investigation and report back to the council. The latter body evinced a disposition to make haste slowly in the premises.

REAR ADMIRAL FISKE DECLARES U. S. NAVY UNPREPARED FOR WAR

the scout, the submarine, the airship, the aeroplane and the mine being developed by foreign nations into effective instruments of war, but we have not developed them into effective instruments of war ourselves.

General Staffs Competent.
"We have admirably noted the wonderful work of the general staffs, but have provided no general staff or similar agency ourselves, though the recent creation of the office of chief of naval operations is a step in that direction—that should have been taken fifteen years ago. We have not tested war plans, no proper system of communications, no tested mobilization scheme. As to gunnery, the news that keeps coming in of achievements in long-range firing by European ships shows us that while we are as good in gunnery as we have ever been, our competitors have accomplished feats greater than any that we have even attempted.

"This is destructive criticism, some may say. True, but has destructive criticism no constructive value? During the laborious hours of preparation no criticism can be too keen, no searching out of faults too stern, no acknowledgment of deficiencies too frank.

"Although the country's sentiment is behind the country's navy, yet that navy itself is not a matter of sentiment, but a matter of fact. Have we or have we not a navy of such composition, organization, size and skill, that it could successfully resist a probable enemy in war?
"If 'no' is the answer, then the reason and the money of a hundred million people must work upon the navy until 'no' gives place to 'yes.' The hundred million people of the country, if they will prevent their own actions, must build a navy that can keep her coasts inviolate; a navy that can guarantee freedom from foreign interference, while the nation works out its destiny; a navy that can further the aspirations of America and safeguard the happiness of her people."

should be any increase unless a corresponding increase was made in interstate rates; that the proposed rates would place Houston jobbers at a disadvantage on long hauls. Letters were filed from the Peden Iron and Steel company and the Texas Bagging and Fibre company showing these companies could not stand any increase because of a small margin of profit already.

Traffic Manager Haines of the Galveston Chamber of Commerce showed that under the proposed tariff the increase on one road, the International, would be ten per cent and out of Houston only two-tenths of one per cent. He insisted that Galveston and other Texas ports should be protected in the readjustment of the rates by the commission. The commission spent the entire morning session on class rates which has been under consideration for the past three days. The commission recessed until this afternoon.

Observe Birthday of Jefferson Davis

Honoring the day of birth of Jefferson Davis, the Daughters of the Confederacy gave a reception at the home of Mrs. M. C. H. Park, on South Fifth street, yesterday afternoon. The banks closed for the day.

At the home of Mrs. Park, decorations in Confederate and United States flags were prominent and the large picture of Jefferson Davis was hung in a prominent position and a large picture of the jury that tried Mr. Davis in which was shown negroes sitting in the jury box was also placed in a noticeable position.

At the reception the Confederate veterans were the guests of honor and two of the members had the Cross of Honor bestowed in recognition of their services in the war of Rebellion—the two members honored were Jacob Ellis and James M. Merritt.

An attractive program was rendered during the afternoon, consisting of music, readings and addresses and songs. A quartet was rendered by Mesdames A. Kelly, Sisco, Hines and Sharp and Miss Snow Johnson that deserved special mention, according to the guests. They rendered the old familiar song, "Tenting on the Old Camp Grounds," one of the most familiar and best loved songs in the South.

An original poem by Mrs. Lessing, poet laureate of the Texas division of the Daughters of the Confederacy, entitled "June 3" and written especially for the birth of Jefferson Davis, was read.

Specialists and Prayers Invoked to Save the Life of King

♦ The ROYAL FAMILY OF GREECE ♦

Athens, May 30.—During the illness of King Constantine great crowds gathered in front of the royal palace. Prayers were everywhere said for the recovery of the king. The religious feeling was intensified by the conveyance of the icon of the Holy Virgin to the palace. Accompanied by a procession of the clergy the icon was taken through streets lined with silent crowds. All shops had closed and the church bells rang. In front of the royal residence an enormous gathering patiently awaited the arrival of the sacred image. Although the king's condition was serious, Professor Zaimis and the other physicians in attendance upon him trusted on his robust constitution and the fact that there was no abscess and no heart weakness to pull him through. Premier Gounaris said that although there was no immediate danger in the king's condition, it would be rash to exclude the possibility of a grave issue. In the accompanying illustration, from left to right, are: Prince Paulos, Prince Alexandros, Queen Sophie, Crown Prince Georgios, King Constantine, Princess Helene and Princess Irene.

TRAGIC DEATH MET BY C. W. COCKERHAM

RURAL MAIL CARRIER KILLED
WHEN FOOT CAUGHT IN CART AND HORSE RAN AWAY.

Deceased Was Nephew of Winfield Scott—Moved to Waco Soon After End of the Civil War.

His foot becoming entangled in his mail cart, C. W. Cockerham, rural mail carrier, was dragged to a horrible death yesterday, suffering internal injuries and almost every one of his bones being broken. His horse was seen to be running along the Dallas road, with the body bumping along behind, to then run along a lane to the Corsicana road. A negro, on a street sprinkler, outran the jaded horse and stopped it.

Constable Leslie Stegall and Deputy Constable Phil Hobbs were the first to arrive. A call was then sent in to the city hall and the city ambulance was sent, with Police Officer Rutland and Brandon and Judge Joe Wren in it, and Cockerham was hurried to Providence sanitarium. Every effort was made to save his life, but in vain. The runaway occurred about 2:30 and Mr. Cockerham died at 4 o'clock.

C. W. Cockerham was born in Columbus, Miss., Nov. 11, 1849. He served through the Civil war in company K, Sixth Mississippi cavalry, Col. Leham G. Harrison's regiment. He was wounded in the battle of Tupelo, Miss. The regiment in which he fought was under command of General Forrest.

In 1856, he came to Texas, settling in Waco, then little more than an Indian village. He had held many responsible positions here, and had been in the government employ for about thirteen years. He is survived by his widow, who is a sister of Mrs. W. T. Lockwood. The Cockerhams lived out two miles on the Robinson road.

Mr. Cockerham was the direct descendant of Von Baron Fischer and was a nephew of Gen. Winfield Scott, officiating. The pall bearers will be active, Luke Moore Jr., Bob Ross, John M. Connor, I. N. Odum, F. E. Goodman and T. E. Clafield; honorary, R. L. Strubling, Dr. G. B. Foscutt, John W. Baker, W. H. Hoffmann, A. R. McCollum, Judge M. M. Surratt and Tom Padgett.

Last September, Mr. and Mrs. Cockerham's only child, Mrs. H. A. Owens, died at San Antonio. She was buried at Oakwood and this evening her father's body will be laid to rest by her side.

POWDER IN SHOES AS WELL AS GUNS

Foot-Ease to Be Added to Equipment of Hospital Corps at Fort Wayne.

Under the above heading the Detroit Free Press, among other things says: "The theory is that soldiers whose feet are in good condition can walk faster and faster than soldiers who have corns and bunions incased in rawhide.

The Government's foot powder order is regarded as the last word in the scientific outfitting of the defenders of the flag."

The English, French and Allied Troops constantly make use of Allen's Foot-Ease. It takes the friction from the shoe and rests the feet. This foot powder, shaken into the shoes of soldiers, has long been in use in the German army, and Uncle Sam's adoption of this form of treating and easing the feet, emphasizes the tests of many of the millions of people the world over, who are shaking Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder, into their shoes, and using it in the foot bath, as the only practical and lasting treatment for easing and absolutely preventing sore feet. Sold by Drug and Department stores everywhere. 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y., U. S. A.

Right to Kill Chickens That do Damage Upheld

If your neighbor's chickens continue to scratch up your pretty flower beds after you have warned your neighbor to restrain the liberties of the troublesome fowls, you have a perfect right to take the law in your own hands and kill the offending fowl, according to the decision of Corporation Judge J. G. Wren yesterday morning. In the case of Oakes vs. Aubrey, in this case the evidence showed that Mrs. Llewellyn Aubrey, the defendant, possessed a well-kept lawn, and that a hen belonging to a neighbor, Mrs. J. Oakes, the plaintiff, did much damage to the flower beds on Mrs. Aubrey's lawn. The owner of the hen was warned several times to keep the old hen up. Finally Mrs. Aubrey became thoroughly exasperated and had the trespassing fowl's head removed, returning the dead and no longer troublesome hen back to the owner. The neighbor filed complaint in the corporation court charging Mrs. Aubrey with malicious mischief. Judge Wren dismissed the case this morning when Assistant City Attorney Jake Carey confessed the flimsiness of the city's case.

The city charter provides that an ordinance shall be drafted prohibiting residents of the city from allowing fowls to run at large, which provision was inserted when the charter was being made through the influence of some of the women of Waco who wished to protect the handsome lawns of the city, and especially since the move toward civic beautification by removing fences had become almost universal. Judge Llewellyn Aubrey announced yesterday that he would insist that the city commission pass the ordinance contemplated by this section of the charter.

With an eye to clearing up the chicken question so that women who keep pretty lawns may know just how far they may go and in the words of the street "get away with it," a Morning News representative asked Judge Wren to define his attitude and interpretation of the statute which prohibits persons from killing or maiming any domesticated animal belonging to another with the intention of injuring the owner. Judge Wren said that the person suffering from the depredations of wandering fowls should, of course, use all reasonable precaution to keep the fowls off his premises, and should give warning to the owner. In case the owner persistently failed or refused to restrain his fowls, the law could probably find no fault with the person who killed the offending fowl. Judge Wren considered that perhaps another point might be raised if the person who killed the fowl should not return it to the owner, but should put it in the pot, as has been proposed by some of the most aggressive defenders of the well-kept lawn and flower garden.

Governor Ferguson Is Back at Austin

Austin, Tex., June 3.—Governor Ferguson reached his office early today and began immediately the consideration of the bills passed during the special session of the Thirty-fourth legislature. He locked himself in his private office and denied himself all callers in order that he might devote his entire attention to these bills, which include the general appropriation bills. The governor spent his brief vacation on his ranch in Borden county and reports that his Durham herd is in excellent condition and that crop prospects were bright.

When Glands Swell Blood Needs Attention

Even a Sweat Gland May Result in Severe Consequence.

In our intricate body the use of S. S. S. for the blood has a most remarkable influence. We little realize our glandular system. It may be a tiny bulb no bigger than a pin point, and yet if a disease germ gets into it, there is a tremendous swelling. It becomes a boil, a carbuncle, or it may be a "blood rising," and it is often a source of continuous misery if not checked. Many of the most excruciating forms of torture begin with the swelling of a tiny gland, caused by a disease germ. And it is S. S. S. that spreads throughout the blood circulation to prevent just such conditions. Or if they have already started, S. S. S. will soon put the blood on such a state of health as to overcome the tendency to glandular swellings. It is a natural medicine for the blood, just as essential to health if the blood be impure, as are the meats, fats, grains and sugars of our daily food.

It contains one ingredient the active purpose of which is to stimulate the exchange of new flesh for dead or waste matter.

"Complexion Secrets Of An Actress"

In a recently issued volume bearing the above title, the author says: "Continuous use of grease paints, rouge and the like, had ruined my complexion. My skin was colorless, wrinkled, coarse and punctured with large pores. My skin heard of the virtues of mercurized wax, my first experience with this marvelous substance convinced me it was more valuable than all cosmetics combined. Now, whenever my complexion begins to go wrong I get an ounce of mercurized wax, a thin layer of it before retiring, washing it off next morning. The wax, after a few such treatments, seems literally to absorb the worn-out cuticle, when a brighter, healthier, younger-looking skin appears."

For the wrinkles and large pores I began using a solution of mercurized wax, dissolved in a half pint of alcohol. Butting the fact in this every day for a while soon relieved the condition most wonderfully."

AD CLUB DISCUSSES PROPOSED CHANGES

NO DECISION REACHED AS TO WHERE LUNCHEONS WILL BE HELD IN FUTURE.

Good Progress Reported in Signing Up Members to Make Trip to Chicago Convention.

No final decision was reached at the meeting of the Waco Ad club last night in regard to the proposal of changing the place for holding the luncheons, but it was decided to raise the price of the meals at the Y. M. C. A. from 35c to 50c until the matter was finally settled.

In the absence of President C. B. Harman and both the vice presidents, J. W. Carlin, advertising manager for Goldstein-Migels, presided, by request. The plan of rotating the programs was adhered to, L. S. Henry of the educational committee being in charge. Mr. Henry stated that the meeting would be devoted to a discussion of whether or not changes should be made in the time and place of meeting.

Four members had been appointed to lead the discussion, W. S. Rathell, A. G. Steele, W. H. Hoffmann and C. J. Clanton, all of them except the first named, who was detained on account of business, being present and speaking on the subject.

On the one hand, it was admitted that the Y. M. C. A. had been very kind in allowing the organization to use the rooms, but urged that a change might be a good thing in order to get up more interest among the members of the club. It was suggested that by meeting first at one place and then at another for awhile, more interest would be aroused. Several open air meetings during the summer, as a change, were also suggested.

Those opposing changing the meeting place said that they did not believe it would be right to favor one hotel to the detriment of the others. Very strong objections were made to changing the hour, it being claimed that the time would be too short at the noon hour and that no other hour, aside from the one now used, would be feasible. It was also suggested that privacy could not be so well obtained at a hotel.

On motion of W. H. Hoffmann, the entertainment committee was directed to secure information regarding a possible change and report at the next meeting.

Good progress was reported in securing signatures to the list of those who will attend the convention at Chicago, by W. H. Hoffmann, who is a member of the state "On-to-Chicago" committee. He told of what other cities were doing and urged the members of the Waco Ad club to see that this city was well represented. Indications are at present that several hundred Texans will go on the special train, which will leave from Fort Worth.

Railroads Protest Intangible Assets

Austin, Tex., June 3.—The state tax board, composed of the tax commissioner, secretary of state and comptroller, met today and heard protests from a number of the railroads in the state against the intangible assets fixed by the board for 1915. O. L. Clark of the Santa Fe protested against the valuation of intangible assets fixed against his road, which is, in round numbers, $25,000,000, an increase of $6,300,000 over the previous year.

H. B. Hardins of the El Paso and Southwestern protested, the valuation being $12,129,000, an increase of $600,000. Protests were also made today by T. K. Hawkins in behalf of the Quannah, Acme and Pacific, the valuation being fixed at $236,000. Protest also was made by the Texas Midland. The commission took all these protests under advisement. On account of rate hearings now in progress the hearing of the protests by most of the larger roads was deferred until a later date.

Two things are credited to Mutual master pictures in general. The stories have a freshness of atmosphere and are in most cases unerringly human. These two elements that make for success dominate in "The Lonesome Heart," newest of the Mutual master pictures showing at the Hippodrome today and tomorrow.

Margarita Fischer, one of the beauties of film and who has proven her worth as an actress several times in former appearances and particularly in "The Quest," the first Mutual master picture, is again to the fore as a heroine in this play.

Harry Folland, the director, has succeeded in making this simple, human story appealing through a minute attention to detail. In support of Miss Fischer, whose dark beauty and histrionic skill are too widely celebrated to require emphasis, a capable cast appears, including Lucille Ward, Joe Singleton, and Robyn Adair.

Samanthy, left as a foundling on the steps of the county orphan asylum, grows up in rags and tatters and is constantly abused by Sara Prue, the superintendent, who keeps to herself the fact that she saw James Stuart leave the baby girl and that on the shawl that wrapped her the name, "Dorothy Loomis," was embroidered. Tom, the aged gardener, and the orphaned kids are Samanthi's only friends. For comfort she takes to the reading of romantic novels, and after suffering particularly at the hands of Sara Prue she runs away one night and sleeps in the woods, a line of action she feels sure would be approved by Lady Evangeline and the bold Sir Percival, heroine and hero of the novel she has just been reading.

George Stuart, son of that James who was concerned so faithfully with poor Samanthi's youth, finds the girl in the woods and takes her under his protection, despite her ridiculous attire. As for Samanthi, to her George is the fairy prince of her girlish fancy assuredly come to life. In the home of old Nurse Holbrook, where George takes her for safe keeping, Samanthi finds the love her lonesome heart so long has craved, while George, to shield her from Sara Prue, plans to become her legal guardian. At this time his father takes a hand in affairs and tells the girl that his son cannot possibly marry her, and poor Samanthi writes her imaginary mother a letter pouring out the tribulations of her heart.

In the depths of her disappointment Samanthi returns to the orphanage and once more yields herself up to Sara Prue's ill treatment. The little orphans at least are glad to see her back, and at length George himself traces her. Meanwhile, Sara Prue has tried to blackmail old James Stuart. She makes him see that she knows Samanthi's origin. The child, it appears, was the daughter of Stuart's partner and on the fortune of which he has robbed Samanthi old James' wealth is founded. Through the complications of events and the good offices of Samanthi's fairy prince the orphaned child is restored to her rightful sphere in the world and the lonesome heart at last is occupied.

GUS EDWARDS AT THE COZY.

Gus Edwards, "America's foremost song writer," and his bunch of juvenile songsters, mostly girls, and none of whom is said to be over 15 years of age, have delighted two audiences at the Cozy theatre with a "Song Revue of 1915." The girls are good looking, this feature more than making up for any lack of ability in singing and the ensemble work of the boys is especially good.

The program opens with "The Song Farm," sung by the entire company made effective on the stage by several reminders of farm life, including a wagon with hay, on which the entire company is seated.

Many other songs are presented, the program being divided in two parts. The feature of the show is the work of "Little Georgie," advertised as "the world's greatest juvenile artist," in his impersonations of leading Broadway artists, including Raymond Hitchcock, Eddie Foy and others. His imitation of Charles Chaplin, movie comedian supreme, is positively a scream. A matinee will be given this afternoon, at 2 o'clock and the last performance tonight.

The entire program is as follows:
ACT I.

"The Lonesome Heart"

Samanthy—played by Margarita Fischer—is an inmate of a foundling asylum with a great fondness for stories of romance. Marvelous adventures befall her when she runs away from the asylum and finds her "Fairy Prince."

"The Lonesome Heart" is a beautiful play to look at—with an intense plot, a story full of heart throbs and a strong love note dominating the scenes.

A strong cast of stars portrays the action of the play. In every way it is a great production.

This magnificent moving picture will be shown at this theatre.

SAGE ALLOWS BUT ONE RUN

Bobbie by Durkin in First Helps in the Run Getting for the Navigators.Shreveport, June 3.—Waco made every hit count today and won the last game of the series with Shreveport 4 to 1.
Crichlow drove in three of the visitors' tallies with timely singles, Coyle scoring each time.In the first inning Coyle got on when Durkin made a bobbie. He stole second and scored when Crichlow singled to left.In the third Coyle singled, stole second and scored on Crichlow's second knock.
In the fourth Wohlleben singled, went to third on Conwell's single to right and scored on Walters' long sacrifice fly to center.The Coyle-Crichlow combination bobbed up again in the eighth. Coyle again singled and stole second as in the previous innings and again scored on Crich-low's single to left.The Gassers had plenty of chances to score before the sixth but failed. In the first inning Becker singled but he died on the paths. In the fourth Schrader led off with a single, but again Sage tightened up and he too died on base.The sixth was the big inning for the locals—for it was the only stanza in which the Gassers counted. Schrader, first up, tripled to the center field fence,
Rickett popped up to Conwell, Barr caught one on the nose and it went to deep center, Schrader scoring after it was caught.That's all the Gassers could make.
They had no chance afterward, as it was three up and three down in the seventh, practically the same in the eighth and Sage closed a brilliantly-pitched game by sending three to the water barrel in the final round. The score:

Texas Bankers Tour to Frisco Starts

Among the pleasure-seekers leaving on the special train of the Texas Bankers' tour yesterday afternoon were: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Milam, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rush, Mrs. E. F. Goodman, J. K. McDaniel and Miss Mary McDaniel. The party of 125 bankers and ladies were completed and the Santa Fe ran a special train of five Pullmans, one club and one observation car, all the cars being all steel and equipped with every known convenience of the railroad people so that all the party had to do was to thoroughly enjoy the scenery and the entire trip.

This is the tenth annual tour put on by the Santa Fe for the convenience of the bankers of Texas and the train was one of the best that was ever run out of Texas, according to the officials of the Santa Fe. It was at first intended to run the tour in connection with the regular schedule but to accommodate the excursionists it was made a special.

The train left Temple yesterday afternoon at 2 p. m. and will make the trip in twenty-three days, returning to Texas June 26. The party is under the personal supervision of J. W. Butler of the First State Bank and Trust company of Clifton, one thoroughly familiar with the route and with the handling of a party to best insure pleasure as well as profitable sight-seeing.

The first stop of the special will be made at Albuquerque, N. M., and the entire day of Saturday will be spent at Grand Canyon. From there they will go on to San Francisco where the party will spend five days visiting the exposition there. Two days will be given to Los Angeles and one to the exposition at San Diego. Returning the party will come by way of Salt Lake City and through the Yellowstone National Park. The return includes trips through the Royal Gorge, Glenwood Springs and Colorado Springs.

WAGO OWNED PLANT GUARDS ARE KILLED

MEXICANS ATTACK PROPERTY OF AMERICAN CONSOLIDATED MINING COMPANY.

BRYAN ASKED FOR PROTECTION

Officials Telegraph Secretary of State as to Situation Which is Declared Very Serious.

That all the guards at the plant of the American Consolidated Mining and Milling company at Tavachie, State of Oaxaca, Mexico, had been murdered and that the situation was very serious was the word received here yesterday by H. M. Minier, secretary of the company. Mr. Minier at once got into communication with Sidney Smith of Fort Worth, president of the company, and a telegram was sent to Secretary of State W. J. Bryan advising him of the situation and requesting him to have Vice Consul Clifford K. Robinson of Oaxaca see that the property was protected.

The American Consolidated Mining and Milling company is composed largely of Texas capital, has twelve or fourteen hundred acres of valuable land and thirty-five gold and silver mines that have been opened up, some of which were in a good state of development when the first Mexican revolution started. Good offers have been received for several of the properties, contingent on the ending of the present chaotic condition in Mexico. The company is capitalized at $3,000,000, and was organized in 1903. There are about seventy-five stockholders in Waco and McLennan county, among them being F. M. Gardner, J. H. Lockwood, W. W. Seely, Sam Sanger, Joe S. Thompson, E. B. Baker, T. B. Hays and Mrs. R. P. Chamberlain.

There are also a number of San Angelo people interested in the proposition and Henry B. Hale of that city was in charge of the guards at the plant. Fortunately, Mr. Hale was in Coahuila, the nearest town to the camp at Tavachie, on the night of June 1, when the raid occurred. Up to that time, the company's property had not been interfered with, a strong force of native guards were kept posted about it. When Mr. Hale went out to the camp on the morning of June 2, he discovered the mutilated forms of all of his guards and that the plant had been broken into and pillaged.

"The situation is very serious," wired Vice Consul Robinson to friends at San Angelo. Those interested in the company are hopeful that Secretary Bryan will instruct Mr. Robinson to take charge of the plant at once in the hopes that he may be able to succeed in getting the Mexican authorities to protect the property.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS ARRIVES

HIGH COMPLIMENT PAID PROF. J. C. LATTIMORE BY PROF. B. B. COBB.

Impromptu Reception Held at Office. Many Applicants for Positions Met.

"Mr. Lattimore's greatness as a public school man was shown by the fact that he left the schools here in such a condition that they could run themselves for several months without a superintendent," said B. B. Cobb, new superintendent of the Waco public schools, who arrived yesterday from Marshall. Mr. Cobb's remark followed a conversation with a Morning News representative in which the new superintendent referred feelingly to the late Prof. J. C. Lattimore and to his work in the Waco schools.

Prof. Cobb arrived at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Cobb, registering at the Riggins. All day yesterday the new superintendent was busy conferring with applicants for places on the teaching staff of the schools next year. Last night Prof. Cobb was introduced to the people of Waco at the graduating exercises of the high school, held in the auditorium. At 9 o'clock this morning he will be present at the graduating exercises of the Central Grammar school.

The new superintendent is a man of much experience in public school work. Since graduating at the University of Texas, he has been superintendent of schools at Marshall for five years, and previously at Gatesville for four years. He also taught in Denton and other Texas cities.

Mr. Cobb stated yesterday afternoon that he had not had time to survey the situation here, and consequently could announce no plans for the work next year. He took occasion to compliment the condition in which the Waco schools had been left by the late Superintendent Lattimore. Principals of the various schools of the city held an impromptu reception in the superintendent's office at the high school yesterday afternoon, many of them meeting the new superintendent for the first time.

Humane Society Subscriptions Due

Annual subscriptions to the work of the Waco Humane Society were declared due at a meeting of the society held yesterday afternoon in the Young Men's Christian Association building. Members of the society will this week go to every person on the rolls and ask for a renewal of the subscription. Efforts will be made to add a number of names to the roll. It was estimated that approximately $1,000 is needed to maintain the efficiency of the society for a year. President A. R. McCollum announced that he would call another meeting in a few days, when reports will be received and further plans made.

Red Cross Foodstuffs Arrive at Monterey

Laredo, Tex., June 3.—Distribution of the first carload of foodstuffs sent by the American Red Cross began June 1 in Monterey, according to a telegram received here today by Consul General Garrett from Consul General Hanna at Monterey, under whose supervision the food was distributed.

Consul Garrett estimated there has been an exodus of nearly 2,000 persons in the last three days from Monterey and vicinity. The majority of them nearly destitute. Many of them have sought to enter the United States here and immigration officials have been refusing to admit those liable to become public charges. A large number, however, have been allowed to enter.
